Saddam Hussein's two sons-in-law who defected last August had a change of heart, received an official pardon and returned to Iraq with their families in tow. The two Hussein daughters promptly asked for a divorce and got it. Then ... the two former turncoats were killed "by embarrassed members of their own clan." Elba folks were predicting this from day one. The only thing not spelled out by these worldly Elba observers of the world, was the exact date.

There is a bill in the Alabama legislature this year designed to protect private property owners hurt by new government regulations. Reportedly 49 states have passed or are considering similar laws. On the surface we endorse this idea completely. Then the scary part comes into the picture. Like so many well meaning laws and regulations, they can get misused so easily. Just think of all the lawsuits possible every time a new law is passed "because it MIGHT cause my property to drop in value IF I tried to sell it." Case in point is the well meaning regulation to give a monthly check to parents of troubled children. This was designed to help financially strapped families deal with a unique problem but has developed into a booming business. There are doctors who will certify anything for that almighty dollar and parents who will subject their children to any sort of degrading for that monthly government "crazy check." There are now reports of huge percentages of children in certain areas whose parents are getting this monthly check from the government. American taxpayers don't need any more such burdens and Alabama legislators need to look at all the loopholes in this particular piece of legislation.

Another bill in the legislature is being tooted as "protecting the electric consumer." It is known as House Bill #350 and in the Senate as #306. They read the same. Actually, it is being pushed by several utilities alarmed at the possibility that utility deregulation at the federal level will allow large companies to buy electric power from a cheaper source. They are arguing this will cause you and me to pay even higher rates. Again, this looks good on the surface, but is it really an effort in preserving self interest, rather than defending us poor defenseless "little folks." A group we never heard of before, Electric Consumers' Alliance, is supporting this measure in Alabama They claim to have been active in a similar situation in California. That in itself is enough to raise the caution flag ... California is well known for thinking a bid different from the rest of society.

Again, we respond to many who want to know when city politicking begins. Alabama law required the mayor to call the election by July 2nd. Qualifying for office begins after that. The election is held on August 27th and any necessary run-off election is set (by law) for Septem-

The business future in Elba continues to be upbeat. Worth Tent Supply is almost ready to announce a new plant they are moving to Elba. City council members were told Monday night that the deal has been closed verbally, and the official signing is expected soon. We like the whole concept behind this project and salute the principals for their thinking and planning. There are two or three more semi-confidential projects getting closer to reality. We say semi-confidential, 'cause we know about them and if two folks know a secret, it ain't secret any more. Right now we are like an excited child at Christmas time.

The victims for the Highway 84 wreck last week, which injured five and killed one, have begun getting out of the hospital, even though they have a lot of healing yet to do. The one big exception is 18 month old Joseph Johnson who was transferred to an Atlanta hospital and underwent bone graft surgery Monday to hopefully repair a neck injury. Family members said Tuesday that doctors give some hope that the surgery will relieve the paralyses he is experiencing from the waist down. His parents, Charles and Melissa Johnson, have been released from the hospital, but need extensive assistance and must return regularly to Dothan for extended medical treatments. The same is true for 16 year olds William Morrow and Janna Hughes.

Few argue that the programs established to fight the war on poverty have worked. Welfare, "as we know it" has been a grand failure, especially for women and children. Welfare programs that were intended to strengthen the family and promote work have been miserably ineffective, if not downright counterproductive. The prognosis for poor families today is not good. An increasingly number of poor children are raised without a father in the home. Despite hundreds of millions of dollars spent on immunization programs and prenatal care, a number of poor children still suffer from preventable diseases and the infant mortality rate for the poor remains higher than the national average. The poor today are at greater risk for AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. And, the prognosis for crime, substance abuse, and death, especially among boys, is at an all-time high.

When whole segments of society are trapped in a dependency cycle that discourages them from reaching their maximum potential. The quality of life for all Alabamians is diminished, the only way to break the cycle of welfare dependency and maintain a civil society is for Alabama to restore the traditions of family and selfgovernment for all people.

FIFTH GRADE PRESENTS EDUCATIONAL PLAY...Mrs. Richardson's fifth grade Social Studies class recently presented the play, "Ben Franklin" on the stage of the Elba Elementary School cafeteria. The class has been studying American history, and this play, which showcased one of our most famous Americans, proved to be fun and educational for the participants as well as the audience. Franklin's inventions, his experiments, and his writings were a few of his accomplishments that were depicted in the drama.

THE PRESSBOX

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

Birthdays are always an exciting time for children and parents alike; however, next week we'll celebrate a birthday and I'll admit that this one has dear ole Dad a little worried. Our oldest daughter will turn 13 next week, and that means that we'll now have a real live teenager in the house. She's been getting ready for months and has this teenage thing down pat, and now I'm afraid that before long she'll want to do something really scary and practice driving. It looks like Daddy's little girl has turned into Daddy's little lady!

BIGGEST GROUP IN YEARS OUT FOR SPRING DRILLS

The Elba Tigers started spring football practice last week and over sixty players were on hand for the opening day of drills to greet Coach David Lowery and his staff. That number has dwindled down to a little over fifty after one week of hard work, but the Tigers have dressed out only around thirty varsity players for the past three years, and to have over fifty players on the team shows that perhaps Coach Lowery and his staff have pumped some new life into the program. Almost half the players are upcoming sophomores, which means the squad is young. However, those youngsters have a way of growing up, and if they will stick with the program, the future could be very bright for the Tigers for years to come.

SOUTHEAST REGIONAL IS FILLED WITH EXCITEMENT

The Southeast Regional High School Basketball Tournament was held at Troy State last week, and as always, there was plenty of exciting basketball for all to watch. The Troy State gym was packed for some of the sessions and fans were standing up, and the crowds were always large when the boys games were being played. The Regional Tournament format has proven to be a huge success, and one that hopefully will be around for years to come. Here are a few notes from the tourney.... *Louisville finally made it to the Regionals after being upset the previous two years in area and sub-regional action, but the highly-touted Red

Devils didn't hang around long as they were knocked off in the opening round. Louisville has had one of the state's top 3A teams for years, but can't seem to win when it counts the most. *Andalusia staged two comebacks to win the 5A title, and the Bulldogs will make the trip to Birmingham this week with hopes of bringing home the school's first-ever state championship in basketball. While the state title would make history for the Bulldogs, it would certainly be a fitting tribute to Coach Richard Robertson, who has proven that while his way may not be the most flashy, it still works. *Goshen kept its state title hopes alive by claiming the 2A regional, and the Eagles will be flying high when they head up to Birmingham. Goshen lived in the shadow of Brantley the past three years and watched the Bulldogs win three straight state championships. However, now it's the Eagles turn to go after the crown, and they might just have the talent to bring it

*Kinston was outmatched in its clash against top-ranked Autaugaville, but the Bulldogs never quit and showed that they indeed belonged at the 1A regionals. The Bulldogs got everybody in on the act at Troy State as every player dressed out got in the book, and you can bet that the younger players will be determined next season to make a return trip next season and win some games. Despite the loss, Kinston's trip to the regional should pump new life into Bulldog basketball. *I have a daughter that plays basketball and really don't mind watching the girls play, but I think the AHSAA should take a look at playing the boys and girls games at different sessions. Most of the girls fans enjoy watching the girls play, but aren't really interested in the boys, and the same is true with the boys fans. The regionals can still be held at the same site, but how about playing the girls and boys games during separate ses-

YOUTH ALL-STARS REPRESENT CITY WELL AT TOURNEY

The "10 and Under" and "12 and Under" Youth Basketball All-Stars competed at the District Tournament last week, and although both teams lost their opening games, they both played well and represented the city well. The youngest team had a tough draw against Abbeville, while the older team opened with Dothan, which was hardly a weak opponent. With a little luck in the draw the teams may have been able to win several games, but win or lose, both played well and made their fans proud!
